It's difficult to tell which is the most confused after a black and white spotted Dalmatian dog adopted a lamb with a similar spotty coat. The black and white lamb was born at a dog breeder's farm in South Australia. The lamb was pushed away by his mother. Then he was quickly adopted by a female dog Zoë and the pair are now inseparable. Zoë was quick to show the neglected lamb love and affection—licking her adoptive son warmly and generally taking care of him. Now the spotty lamb happily follows her around the farm and even sleeps inside the dog kennel.

A recent survey suggests that crashing waves, bacon sizzling and the glug of a glass of wine being poured are among our favourite sounds. A study of the nation's best-loved sounds found that Brits love nothing more than the noise of the sea—which topped the list of fifty. The sound of rain against the windows—that is if you are on the inside—came in second. Fireworks, children laughing and bacon sizzling are also sounds Brits found pleasing to the ears.

Brazil will offer prisoners a new way to shorten their sentences: four days less for every book they read. Prisoners in several prisons will be able to read up to 12 works of literature, philosophy, science or classics to cut a maximum of 48 days off their sentence each year. Prisoners will have up to four weeks to read each book and write an essay which must be in correct grammar. A special panel will decide which prisoners can participate in this program. Authorities believe a person can leave prison more educated and with a wider vision of the world.

Police in Australia put out a public safety warning on Facebook—after a driver and his passengers ended up whitewashed. The man and his friends were driving along with a 25-litre bucket of white paint on the back seat when they were in a minor accident with another car. Nobody was hurt, but the bucket flew open—sending white paint flying over the inside of the car and its occupants. Local police in a Sydney suburb posted a picture of the wreck on their Facebook page as a warning to others. The officers told people to always put the paint in the boot! But the police admitted they were laughing too.

There's an unusual art exhibition at the National Art Museum of Ukraine. There are five real-life sleeping beauties in a large room. If any of the five sleeping beauties opens their eyes when they are kissed by men at the art museum, they have to marry them. In the exhibition, men kiss the women, trying to wake them. Requirements are the same to participate for the so-called princes and princesses: They should not be married. Men are allowed to kiss the beauty only once, and only on the lips.
