Welcome to the Royal Institute of British Architects' website, the UK's professional body for architecture and the architectural profession. We provide support for our over 40,000 members worldwide and we set standards for the education of architects, in other words, professional objectives. These are applied both in the UK and overseas. We see these two things as our main tasks.

In a way, it's a dead end. The government takes the view that children must start learning as soon as possible if they are to survive in our competitive world. However, many primary school teachers feel that there is an over-emphasis on learning at too young an age. Now there is an alternative being offered to this deadlock.

California is having a record year for honey production. Just five years ago the beekeepers lost half of their bee hives to a cyclical problem, colony collapse disorder. And now that's well and good behind them. This record production comes at just the right time as retail prices have been climbing due to a tighter world honey supply. So the bee farmers are really pleased.

I think I'll go to work for this company! Riot Games, a video games company, pays an unhappy employee up to $25,000 to quit – even if he's only just been recruited. Riot Games wants to cut ties with a newly-appointed staff member if the employee, not the company!, quickly decides he's inappropriate for the position. This must be taken up by the employee within 60 days of employment.
